Lovers Point

On Sunday, August 15, 2003, teenager Barry Wilson was swimming with a friend about 40 feet from shore in 30 feet of water. A shark attacked him from the front and dragged him under, then released him and he came up screaming and flailing. His friend and 4 others got him into an inner tube and back to the beach, with the shark following, but Barry had died by the time they reached the sand.
