

Saturday, September 15, 1984

Pigeon Point

Omar Conger, 28, and Chris Rehm were freediving for abalone when about 500 feet from shore when a great white estimated at 15-16 feet grabbed and shook Conger and took him under. The shark then surfaced with Conger in its mouth and released him close to Chris who then towed him to shore on a surf mat, but Conger had expired from blood loss by the time they reached the beach.